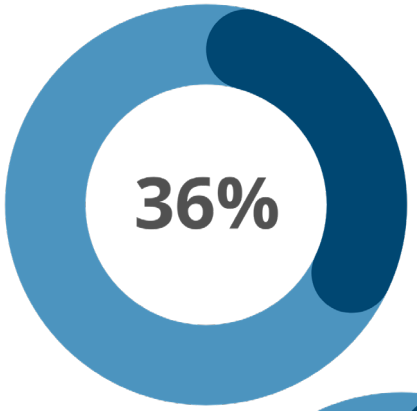
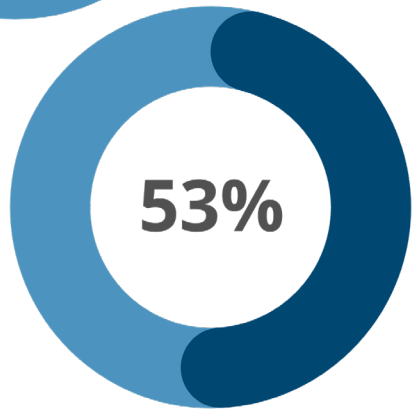
In the “new normal” of employment, one thing is certain—employees are looking for more value from their employers, with learning opportunities being at the top of their lists

36% of employees say they are lacking a Learning Management System (LMS) for fast-paced learning and career development

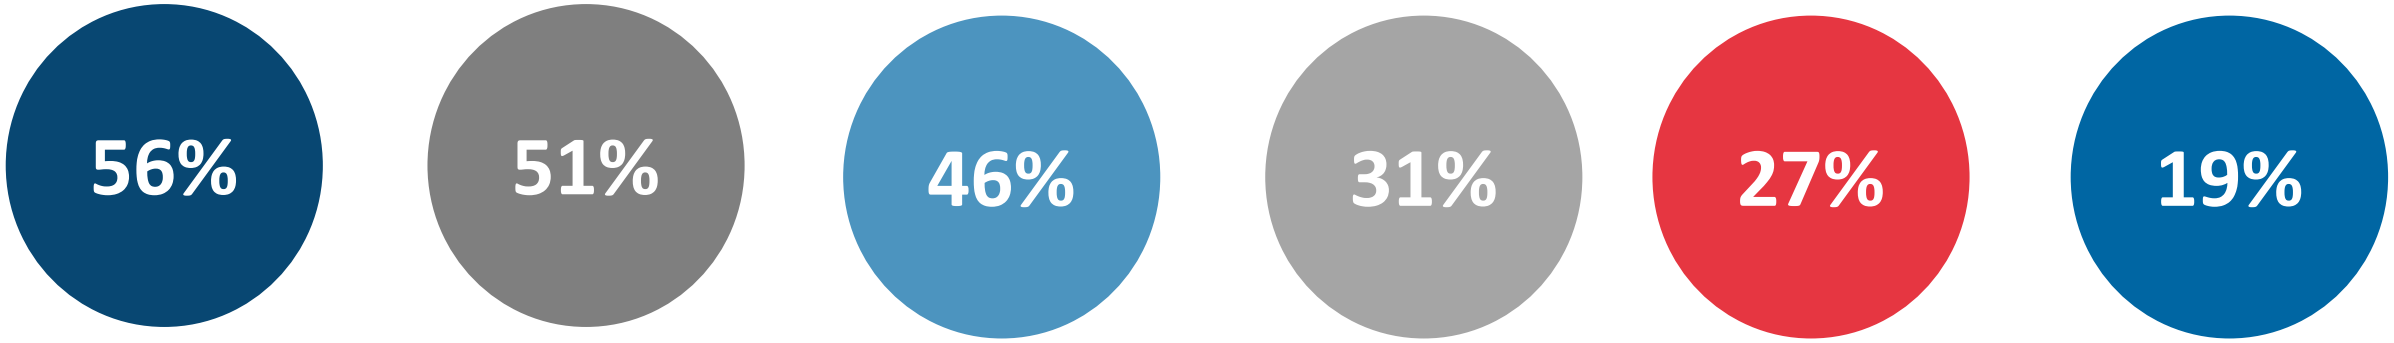


53% of employees say that learning opportunities keep them engaged at work



The Situation

When asked how their employer could improve efforts to support their professional development, employees said:



Organizations that invest in employee experience have more than 4x the profit and 2x the revenue. And employees that experience higher engagement levels outperform their peers and have higher retention.
